SAN FRANCISCO, July 12, 1888.

I took a severe cold upon my chest and lungs and did not give it proper attention; it developed into bronchitis, and in the fall of the same year I was threatened with consumption. Physicians ordered me to a more congenial climate, and I came to San Francisco. Soon after my arrival I commenced taking Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites regularly three times a day. In ten weeks my avoirdupois went from 158 to 180 pounds and over; the cough meantime ceased.

EGYPTIAN WOMEN.

Peccabilities of Their Looks, Dress, Manners and Customs.

In youth the women of Egypt, writes a correspondent of Truth, generally have lovely forms—plump, supple and elegant. An excess of flesh is rare among them. Graceful curves, an upright carriage and finely-molded hands and feet are common characteristics. Their faces, too, are usually pleasing and often beautiful, with the richly-tinted softness of the south. So sweet is the expression of these faces, so bewitching are the glances of their dark eyes, that an experienced traveler declares they are the most perfect of women in the world.

The eyes of nearly all are large, black and almond-shaped; their soft expression, still further heightened by long lashes and the universal use of "kohl," with which they blacken the edges of the lids. They have oval faces, sometimes a little broad, and clear olive complexions. The lips are usually quite full; the nose is straight, though a little wide. Glossy black hair, with eyebrows that form a lovely arch, complete the features of these sirens, famed since Cleopatra for their beguiling beauty.

They dress the hair in an elaborate fashion. It is cut short over the forehead, but on either side of the face hangs a full lock, often curled or braided. The rest of the hair is arranged in numerous braids, usually from eleven to twenty-five, but always an odd number. Three black silk cords bearing little ornaments of gold are generally fastened to each braid, hanging down the back in a glittering shower. The head-dress is a complex arrangement. It consists of a kind of turban, round which is commonly bound a gay kerchief or a long strip of muslin folded into a narrow band. The latter is usually black or rose-colored. The central part is ornamented for several inches with spangles that fall over the forehead, while the ends are decked with a gay edging, and tassels of colored silks above which a few more spangles are sewn. On the crown of the head-dress is worn a round convex ornament called the "kura." It is about five inches in diameter and as costly as the wearer can afford. Wealthy ladies, and even the wives of some small tradesmen, wear those composed of diamonds set in gold. Others wear a simple golden kura, silver being seldom seen, even among servants. The head-vail consists of a long piece of white muslin embroidered at each end with colored silk and gold, or of colored crepe ornamented with gold thread and spangles. This is drawn well forward upon the head, while the long ends hang down behind nearly to the ground. The face-vail, always worn in public, is a simple strip of white muslin fastened just below the crown, from which it falls nearly to the feet. It completely hides all the features except the eyes, but as these are commonly the greatest beauty of the women, it serves rather to heighten admiration than to quell it.

MEN'S IMAGINATION.

Incidents illustrating the influence of the Mind on the Body.

General de Trobriand, in his book "The Army of the Potomac," relates many incidents illustrating the influence of imagination. One poor fellow believed he had a ball in his chest, and prepared to die on account of it. He died. Another with his eye gone and his eyebrows burned off thought nothing was the matter. Another instance was that of a surgeon who had been assured into the army by a salary. He had been a man of luxurious habits. He found himself without fire in a tent covered with snow. He sought to make himself comfortable by making a fire in the open air and toasting one side while the other froze. He could not get used to the meager fare and no bed of the camp. But the roaring of cannon ended his career. He became livid, trembling like a leaf; he shook at each detonation and seemed about to lose his legs. "I am a dead man," he at last exclaimed as if actually shot. "I must go away or I am a dead man." And there he had been a shot anywhere near the division. He had to be carried to a hospital and discharged. At Gettysburg a color-bearer staggered and fell back. "Steady," called the Colonel. "I am wounded," he replied in a choking voice. "Where?" "In the throat." The commander leaned over his horse and looked. "It is nothing. I see no blood." He immediately retook his place, raising up his flag. The ball had really struck him in the neck but bounded off his leather collar, and the shock had choked him for a moment.

On the dawn of the day after Gettysburg De Trobriand found a young sergeant stretched out on his back, his head resting on a flat stone serving for a pillow. His position was natural, even graceful. One knee lightly raised, his hands crossed on his breast, his eyes closed, he seemed to sleep; perhaps dream of her who awaited him in the Green Mountains. He was dead. Wounded, he had dragged himself there to die composedly. His harness was near him. He had taken out of it a little book on which his last looks had been cast, for it was still open in his rigid fingers. It was the New Testament. Different was the tale of a Florida lad. Scarcely twenty years old, he had been bullied by Confederate agents into entering the army. His left heel was carried away by a piece of shell. His right hand was torn off by a canister shot—two amputations he did not complain of; but when he spoke of returning crippled to aged parents dependent on him, his smile was more heart-breaking than any complaint could be.

It Was a Pretty Foot.

The funniest incident of my trip was in a sleeping-car, writes "Gath" in the Cincinnati Enquirer. It was in the morning, when most of the passengers had got out of their berths, and only several sets of curtains were drawn tightly in front of still slumberous persons. Suddenly a foot was thrust out between two curtains. It was small, white and symmetrical—no more than a feminine No. 3—and the merest bit of ankle in sight looked soft and fine. The men glanced at it from the corners of their wicked eyes. The women deprecated the exposure. Then a bold, brazen fellow went right straight to the pretty foot, grabbed the ankle and flung the whole member rudely into the berth.

"He wouldn't treat his bride so," said a woman close by. "It must be his sister." Then the head of a ten-year-old urchin emerged where the foot had been, and, sleepy, angry, boyish voice said: "Look here, Sam, you let me alone. Next time you catch a hold of my foot that way I'll kick the gizzard out of you."

There was a subduence of sentimental interest and a visibility of mirth.

Mrs. Isaacstein (to husband): Dot little Jacob has been a bad boy to-day. Mr. Isaacstein: Was dot so? Mrs. Isaacstein: He went into der closet and ate all out der limburger cheese. Mr. Isaacstein (looking fondly at young Jacob): "O, vell, Rebecca, dot vas not so bad; dot vas natural; all dotte little childrens had dot worst tooth."

THE CENTURY

MAGAZINE in 1889.

WHY Has it such an enormous circulation? Experts estimate that between two and three millions of people read each number.

BECAUSE THE CENTURY is above every thing a leader. It led the development of wood-engraving in America, and it has fostered American authors. It is alive to the issues of to-day. What it prints sets people to thinking and talking.

BECAUSE it may come into the family, the great reading world has found out that "no household can keep abreast of the times without THE CENTURY." Its success is explained by its contents.

BECAUSE The greatest writers of the world like to have their work read by the greatest number, and therefore to such a magazine as THE CENTURY the best naturally come. It was for THE CENTURY that General Grant first wrote his reminiscences of important battles.

BECAUSE It is publishing the life of private secretaries. Of this it has been said: "The young man who is not reading it robs himself of that which he will hunger for." The coming year presents the most important part of this great history, which may begin at any time.

BECAUSE It is printing those remarkable articles on "Liberty and the Exile System" by George K. Luman, which are attracting universal attention and are being reprinted in hundreds of foreign newspapers but are not allowed to enter Russia. The "Chicago Tribune" says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." They are as judicious as the opinion of a Supreme Court tribunal—as thrilling as the most sensational drama.

BECAUSE During 1889 THE CENTURY has to have a series of engravings of the greatest pictures of the old Italian masters, made by Timothy Cole, the leading wood-engraver in the world, who has spent four years in Italy on this work; a series of "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," by Geo. W. Cable; a series of richly illustrated papers describing the scenes of the current international Sunday-school lessons; interesting illustrated papers on Ireland, and a series of humorous and pathetic Irish-American stories; a striking illustrated novelette, "The Romance of Dillard," by a new writer, and other novelties to be announced later; supplemental war papers, untechnical and descriptive of special incidents. "Pictures of the War" by Geo. W. Mary Hallock Foote, etc., etc. We have not space here to announce all the new features. Let us send you (free) our "Catalogue of Special Publications," with original illustrations, containing full prospectus, special offer of back numbers to new beginners in the subscription, etc. The November number, which begins the new volume, is for sale everywhere from December 1st. THE CENTURY contains a number, $2.00 a year. Address THE CENTURY Co., 25 West 7th Street, New York.

5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

"Washoe Wins."

UNDER the caption of "Washoe Wins," the Carson Appeal contains the following:

"Once more the Appeal is called on to chronicle the fact that Washoe county has again been able to plant its knife in Ormsby. Washoe gives a majority of about 400 against the Lottery amendment, an amendment, which, if carried, would have made Carson City the largest town in the State.

"It seems almost incredible that any number of people in this city could have been found who would side with Washoe against the interests of their own county, but when ever Washoe wins on Ormsby it is always certain to find people in Carson who will aid and abet the fight."

Such a dirty, contemptible misstatement of fact could not have been conceived by any other brain than that of the editor of the Appeal.

Washoe cast her vote without any thought of Carson, but fully expected to find Ormsby up in arms and by her side. But, deluded by the thought of pecuniary gain, she fell from grace. Did the Appeal think that the other counties would submit to a stain being placed on the fair name of the State that would have blighted its very existence and made it the gambling hell of the universe for the sake of making Carson a "big town"? If so, it reckoned without its host. Further along in the same article this appears:

"During the past ten years Ormsby has over and over again refused alliance with Storey's ten votes and co-operators. Washoe has three votes, and Washoe has invariably deceived, tricked and bullied us. This time she has again deceived us, and under the thin mask of an outraged 'moral sentiment' swept away the most magnificent chance Carson ever had of becoming a big town, and of course received the usual assistance she can always depend on among our own people."

During the past ten years we defy the Appeal to state one single instance where Washoe has deceived, bulldozed or tricked Carson. It is Washoe's wish to be neighborly and give and take what is fair and just, and she believes it is Ormsby's wish, too, for we don't believe the good people of that county endorse the vicious vaporings of the Appeal. By the way, speaking about "knifing" the lottery scheme, where did it get a worse "knifing" than in Storey? The promoters of the scheme fully expected it would carry in that county by 1,500—enough to overcome all the other counties in the State. The fact is it would not bear ventilation in daylight; so long as it was carried on in the sneak it prospered wonderfully, but as soon as the question was agitated the least bit it began to lose fast and continued to fall until it struck the ground on the 11th, an unrecognized mass of corruption.

The lottery promoters are claiming that the ballots of the anti-lottery voters of Washoe county do not conform to the law, and are to be thrown out. The County Commissioners, in their election notice, used the form held over from last election, which said that ballots should be four by sixteen inches in size, but section 6 of the law calling the special election says: "Any variance from such form in any ballot cast at said election shall not be construed as to invalidate the same, provided it can be ascertained with reasonable certainty therefrom what amendment or amendments to the constitution were voted for or against by such ballots," so that if a ballot were only an inch square it would be legal and binding. The anti-lottery tickets were got up by Judge Bigelow and were pronounced good by Judge Leonard, District Attorney Allen, Pierce Evans, C. A. Jones, Commissioner Hyman and others.

Our neighboring city, Carson, is having a siege with the small-pox. There is danger of it becoming epidemic, and should it, Reno will in all probability be visited by the malady. It would be well for the authorities to take such action as may be necessary, to as nearly as possible quarantine the town, and arrange to meet the affliction should it come, as humanely as possible.

The record Hon. J. F. Emmitt is making in the State Senate shows that Washoe county made no mistake when it elected him to that honorable and responsible position.

THE FRENCH MINISTRY BEATEN.

Speculations as to the Samoan Matter.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES TO THE GAZETTE.]

Bismarck's Tricks.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14.—A Star Washington special says: It looks now very much as if the Samoan conference at Berlin would not be held by representatives of the present Administration. Count Arco Valley, the German Minister, called upon Secretary Bayard yesterday and informed him that the latter's answer to Bismarck's proposal for a conference had been sent to Berlin by mail. It will reach Berlin about the 20th inst. The Berlin Foreign Office will probably take several days to consider Bayard's suggestion, and the answer, if sent by mail, will hardly reach this country before the beginning of Harrison's regime. There seems to be no good reason why the correspondence should not have been conducted by telegraph. The assumption is that Bismarck's report to the mail is simply a trick to gain time to punish the Samoans before the negotiations at Berlin begin. In well informed circles here there is a suspicion that Germany has already sent reinforcements to Samoa to revenge the killing of a number of men in the recent fight with Mataafa, and it is not at all unlikely that we will ultimately hear of another bloody battle. Bayard, however, has made a most vigorous protest against such a course, and has hinted that it would be scarcely worth while to hold a conference, unless Germany gives practical evidence of a sincere desire to promote the restoration of peace in the islands by foregoing her desire for vengeance.

LeCaron Denounced.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—Powderly declares that LeCaron is a cold-blooded villain of the worst type, and unworthy of credence. Powderly exhibits a letter sent him by LeCaron during the strike of the engineers of the Missouri Pacific roads three years ago, endeavoring to entrap him into a conspiracy. LeCaron declared that the only solution was dynamite, and asked Powderly to give him the names of his trusted lieutenants, and while Powderly was to be pretending to counsel peaceful measures, LeCaron would furnish his lieutenants with materials for the destruction of every bridge and culvert on the line. Powderly warned the strikers to have nothing to do with LeCaron. Powderly has sent a copy of this letter to Michael Davitt, with a letter of his own, in which he declares that LeCaron's statements about the dynamite influence at the League Conventions in this country are untrue.

Determined Mob.

St. Louis, Feb. 14.—The body of a railroad brakeman by the name of James Jenkins was found yesterday in Water Valley, Miss., with his throat cut. A notorious dive keeper named William Harris was arrested for the murder. As Harris was being removed to jail he was taken from the officers by a mob, but was retaken later. He was again captured by the mob and was being strung up, when Rev. Hudson appeared, and, after an impassioned appeal for a due course of the law, the crowd returned Harris to the calaboose. Last night another mob attacked the jail and forced an entrance, but found that Harris had been sent to Coffeyville. It is said another mob will go to Coffeyville to hang Harris.

Ordered to Asia.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Secretary Whitney to-day issued an order detaching Commodore George Belknap from his duty as Commandant at the Mare Island Navy Yard in California, and ordering him to duty in command of the Asiatic station, to take the place of Rear Admiral Chandler who died last Sunday. No person has yet been selected as Commandant at the Mare Island Navy Yard.

Nothing but symptoms.

This morning at daylight the ground was barely white with snow, and although a slight sprinkle has fallen at intervals during the day, there is not as much in sight as at sunrise. So long as the wind remains in the north there is no likelihood of much of a storm of any kind.

Another Gunboat Abont.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A telegram has been received at the Navy Department announcing the success of the official trial to the gunboat Yorktown yesterday. The vessel made 16 knots an hour, and she met the requirement of 3,000 horse power.

Losing Their Laborers.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 14.—The emigration agents have been draining the country of able-bodied negroes, and the farmers have become exasperated and have determined to stop it. They have armed themselves and the militia has been called on in anticipation of trouble.

A Cuban Expedition.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—A Spanish expedition recently landed at Tadjurah and are organizing a large caravan which intends to proceed to Ankobar, Abyssinia.

Congressional Matters.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—House.—The Senate bill was passed, providing for writs of error to the United States Supreme Court in all cases involving the question of jurisdiction of the court below.

The Senate amendments were non-concurred in, to the legislative and executive appropriation bills.

The Committee on Appropriations reported back the fortification appropriation bill, with the Senate amendments—referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The conference report on the Senate bill for the admission as a State, of South Dakota, which is the total disagreement, was not agreed to, and a new conference was ordered.

Baker of New York offered a resolution giving the House instructions the following instructions: First—Exclude the Territory of New Mexico from the bill.

Second—Amend the bill so as to provide for the admission of South Dakota by a proclamation by the President, under the Sioux Falls Constitution.

Third. That the proposed states of North Dakota, Montana and Washington be admitted on the same basis; either all by proclamation of the President, or all by formal acts of admission.

Cox of New York, offered a substitute, differing only from Baker's proposition in that it provides for the admission of North Dakota, Montana and Washington by proclamation of the President.

The House has ordered its conferees on the Territorial bill not to insist on the admission of New Mexico, by 135 to 106.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs to-day instructed Chairman McCrary to report favorably on Senate bill appropriating $250,000 for the protection of American interests and citizens at the Isthmus of Panama, and in view of the fact that work on the canal ceases to-morrow, the committee has resolved to make an effort to secure immediate action by the House.

A Terrible Blizzard.

MONTREAL, Feb. 14.—The blizzard which started in last night and is still raging, is the worst so far this season. The snow-fall has not been very heavy but the wind is terrific and dry. The snow has been whirled into great drifts, making travel exceedingly difficult in the cities, while in the outlying districts it is totally out of the question. Railroad travel is thoroughly demoralized; out-going trains are cancelled, and the in-coming are hid away in the snow-drifts somewhere, some of them having been reported and others not. Several people are reported frozen to death.

Afraid of Being Bribed.

MONTREAL, Feb. 14.—A special from London to the Gazette, the Canadian Government organ, says: Statements have reached here, through New York, that a syndicate of leading Republicans in the United States controls $300,000,000, which it intends to use in an effort to secure Canada's annexation to the States by a system of wholesale bribery in Canada, in the event of the dissolution of the Dominion Parliament this year, and a consequent general election.

A Ministry Falls.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—When the question of a revision of the constitution came up in the Chamber of Deputies to-day, Count de Bonville Malleville moved that the debate on the subject be adjourned. Notwithstanding the opposition of the Government, the motion was adopted by a vote of 317 to 218. Floquet thereupon announced that the Ministry would immediately resign.

No Infringement.

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 14.—C. G. Washburn of the Washburn & Moen Manufacturing Company, states that the French barbed wire patent of Louis Janin does not void the Glidden patent. Glidden claims to have invented a twisted fence wire, with spur wire clamped in position by other wire. He does not claim to have invented spurs or prongs.

Anarchist Knights of Labor.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—A circular was sent from Philadelphia some time ago looking to a reorganization of the Knights of Labor as a secret body and opposed to Powderly. The movement has been actively pushed here, and it is claimed that more than twenty local Assemblies have already changed their form to secret organizations.

A Flat Denial.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—John Devoy declares the statement of the informer, LeCaron, that he carried a message from Farnell to Devoy is false. Devoy declares that Farnell never belonged to any of the dynamite sections or had anything to do with them.

A Valuable Animal.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 14.—The fast four-year-old trotting filly, Boque Boula, by Macey's Hambletonian, has been sold for $10,000. She will be taken to Cuba.

Plagiarist Believed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The President has approved the Act for the relief of the town of Plagiarist, A. T.

The Farnell Case.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Scamson, solicitor for the Times, testified before the Farnell Commission to-day. He visited Dublin in May 1885, in quest of evidence. He interviewed a person who was introduced to him as a former employee in the office of the accused, and who produced a slip bearing the signature of Anna Farnell, a specimen of Patrick Eagan's hand writing and a bundle of documents. These documents were brought to London in 1888 and embodied in an affidavit in O'Donnell's suit against Walter for libel. Attorney-General Webster, in his argument in favor of the admission of the letter alleged to have been written by Farnell, let slip the fact that they were received from a man named Phillips, said to be an accountant of the League, but the court refused to admit the letter. Scamson continuing, produced five letters, including the letter, a fac simile of which was printed in the Times.

Lake Tahoe Items.

A Hot Springs (Lake Tahoe) correspondent of the Truckee Republican writes as follows:

The weather is delightful here. We have had only one little fall of snow, and at present the roads are dusty. N. Stein is passing the winter at his camp. Two crews of men in this vicinity are busy cutting logs. The lake is receding very fast, and unless there are big storms, the logging men will have to work at a great disadvantage.

Can Breathe Easy.

Referring to the defeat of the lottery amendment, the Truckee Republican says: Truckee can now breathe easy, for had the proposition carried the community would have been insolvent in a few years after the establishment of the Nevada lottery. The Louisiana concern is bad enough, without having another at our back door.

 No better family resort can be found anywhere than the Riverside Hotel, W. R. Chamberlain, proprietor.
 Take your noon lunches at J. J. Becker's Chicago Saloon, where are to be had both Boca and Sacramento beer.
 C. J. Brookins has made arrangements with the leading publishers whereby he receives all the very latest novels.

 In addition to his excellent Pacific and Fredericksburg beer, George Becker carries a complete stock of cigars, liquors and wines.
 Is it not better to nip consumption, the greatest scourge of humanity, in the bud, than to try and stay its progress on the brink of the grave? A few doses of California's most useful production, Santa Able, the King of Consumption, will relieve, and a thorough treatment will cure. Nasal catarrh, too often the forerunner of consumption, can be cured by California Cat-Rhine. These remedies are sold and fully warranted by C. A. & S. Shoemaker at $1, or three for $2.50.

A Safe Investment.

Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised druggists a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of Throat, Lungs or Chest, such as Consumption, Inflammation of Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping cough, croup, etc., etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Auction Sale.

Major Booton will sell at auction, on Saturday, February 16, at 1 o'clock, a fine lot of cigars, tobacco and liquors at the tailoring establishment of Fred Koller on Virginia street, to the highest bidder for cash. Remember the date.

It should be generally known that Dr. Henry's Dandelion Tonic cures a hearty appetite and increased digestion, dispels nervous depression and low spirits, overcomes back ache and weakness, and will infuse new life and strength into the weakest invalid. Sold by all druggists.

BETTER FEELING.

No New Cases of Small-Pox in Carson so Far.

A dispatch received from Carson at 4 o'clock says: The small-pox excitement has somewhat subsided. Kaiser's daughter was buried last night. All the patients are materially improved to-day, and no new cases are reported.

Dr. Thomas of Reno is at the Arlington House for the purpose of vaccinating all who desire it. Now and then reports are circulated which, upon investigation, prove groundless.

The Ormsby House is guarded by policemen, and no one is allowed to go in or out.
 The schools are dismissed, and circulars from the authorities are posted everywhere, cautioning the people from attending amusements or other crowded places.

CANED.

An Old and Respected Citizen Severely Assaulted.

County Clerk Julien was the recipient of a severe assault on last Tuesday evening. The members of Nevada Lodge, Knights of Honor, appreciating the valuable services of Brother Julien presented him with a gold-headed cane, properly inscribed. Speeches were made by Brothers Mulcahy, Ash, Hammersmith and Brown, and feelingly responded to by Brother Julien. After the presentation all hands adjourned to partake of an excellent lunch prepared by Brother Ash. The members of the Lodge could not have bestowed such a fine gift to a more worthy Brother and man than T. V. Julien. May he live to carry this cane for many years, then be able to hand it down to his children's children, in remembrance of pleasant associations with members of Nevada Lodge, K. of H.

The Valentine Party.

The Valentine party this evening is going to be a grand success. Valentines will be given to each dancer during the grand march, each two of which will be numbered alike. The lady and gentleman obtaining corresponding numbers are to dance one specified dance together. Mr. Hodgkinson has consented to act as Floor Director, and Messrs. Thurston, Hyman, Malotte and Evans as Floor Managers. Tickets, for gentlemen and ladies, $1. Ladies without escort free of charge. Supper served in the hall for 25 cents.

Young lady seated at a writing-table; dainty slipper peeping out of silk drapery; earnest eyes looking into vacancy, with a longing expression; hand resting upon knee, with delicate souvenir closely clasped. Time, this evening, Valentine's Day.
 Now, who can it be?
 Jack—no. Let me see:
 Tom's heart is quite free—
 Could it have been her?
 (I hope that he meant it.)
 Now, who can it be?
 I wonder who sent it?

The Smallpox.

From Col. Atherton, who came down from Carson on the noon train, the GAZETTE learns that Mrs. Kaiser and the two boys and one girl are not expected to live. The colored porter is also very sick. Confluent smallpox is to be dreaded, and it would be well to take measures to prevent the spread of the disease. The first case is now seventeen days old, and the others are two weeks and, being in one of the principal hotels of the town, it will be a wonder if it don't spread.

Justice Court.

Frank Johnson, released from jail yesterday, was again arrested on the charge of disturbing the peace. He pleaded not guilty, and his trial was set for this evening at 6 o'clock.
 Odell Ballinger, arrested on the same charge, got ten days in jail.
 Tom Kelly, same charge, pleaded guilty, and was sent over the river for ten days.

Katie Putnam.

The charming little actress Katie Putnam, supported by her own excellent comedy company in "Erma, the Elf," and the famous Billy Emerson in "White Face," at the Opera House Saturday night. Seats on sale at Nasby's Bazaar.

The Market.

The beef market remains about the same. There has not been but one sale in the past three weeks, and that for 5 1/2 cents for prime steers. The other shipments have all been commission cattle. The outlook for better prices is not at all encouraging.

McTigue Convicted.

McTigue, who was tried in Esmeralda county this week for the murder of Charles Lineman, a clerk in the Postoffice at Silver Peak, was convicted of manslaughter, and was sentenced by Judge Rising to ten years in the State Prison.

Chance for Trade.

The Elko Independent says that any one who has second-hand type, printing material or clothing to exchange for stock in the Nevada State Lottery will find it to his advantage to correspond with the Carson Appeal.

A Social Entertainment.

All Odd Fellows, with their wives and families, are requested to appear at the hall of Truckee Lodge, No. 14, this evening and participate in the literary and social entertainment.

Fine Cattle.

J. H. Thies of Lovelock arrived here last evening with eight carloads of beef cattle, each of which averaged 1,430 pounds. They were reshipped to San Francisco this morning.

Buckley's Arctic Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by all druggists.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence.

Mt. St. Mary's School is under quarantine.
 Auburn, California, is to be lighted by electricity.
 The Silver State says the lottery scheme had too much ring in it to suit the people.

This morning's east-bound overland, which was in two sections, carried 350 passengers.
 Parties who arrived from Carson last evening say the smallpox excitement there amounts to almost a panic.

The Carson Tribune says the majority against the lottery will be nearer 300 than 300, as the lottery people have it.
 There is a report here to-day that the lottery men are going to bring proceedings to have Washoe county thrown out.

It is thought at Carson that the smallpox was brought to that place by a drummer, who had recently recovered from the disease.

The GAZETTE acknowledges the receipt of a complimentary ticket to a ball to be given by Summit Lodge No. 4, K. of P., at Truckee February 19th.

When it became known that the lottery amendment had been defeated the Rev. E. W. Van Deventer of Virginia City, telegraphed Governor Stevenson to "praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Joe Wheeler bought a carload of cattle of Orrin Ross for 5 1/2 cents to-day. They are said to be very fine. Jim Jones also bought three cars of George Humphreys. They are to be weighed to-morrow.

RESOLUTIONS OF CONDOLENCE.

Adopted by the Literary Society of the High School.

At a meeting of the Alpha Literary Society of the Reno High School, held on Feb. 14, 1889, the following resolutions of condolence and regret for the sudden and untimely death of their late member and associate, Alvin L. Cunningham, were adopted:

WHEREAS, By the death of our late friend and classmate, Alvin L. Cunningham, we lose from our ranks one who was ever ready to unite with us in our duties, and who performed her part with cheerfulness and alacrity, and one whose sunny disposition and winning smile made her a general favorite with us all, and in view of the fact that the loss weighing thus heavily on us, falls with far greater force on the members of her own immediate family; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the deceased to say that we deeply regret her removal from our midst, that by her death we have lost a loved friend and companion, and that in mourning for her, we mourn for one who was in every respect worthy our love and regard.

Resolved, That our deepest sympathy is with the parents and the brothers of the deceased in this trial with which it has pleased the all-wise Father to afflict them. May He in His tender mercy heal their aching hearts, and may they take comfort in the thought that "He is could bright or sorrow fade, Death came with friendly care; The opening bud to Heaven conveyed, And bade it blossom there."

Resolved, That these resolutions of sympathy and respect shall be forwarded to the sorrowing family of the deceased; that they shall be recorded in the minutes of the Alpha Literary Society, and that they shall be published in the columns of the daily papers as a last mark of the love and affection we bore her.

By order of the Committee,
 BESSIE T. DOTTEN,
 NELLIE HYMAN,
 GEORGE BATES.

Fifty Paragraphs.

The following people are among those whose the Truckee Republican never expects to see:

A business man that does not swear he will "take out his ad." every time he sees anything in his local paper he does not like.

A man that does not know more about how to run a newspaper than any man in the newspaper business.

A man who has ready-made opinions upon all subjects and anxious to argue for them, whose opinion is worth a continental durn.

A typographical tourist who won't get full as soon as he gets paid off.

A Terrible Misfortune.
 It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nervous, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us.

A source of renewed strength, which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up a constitution, stamped with vigor and firmly long benefited by other means, surely recommends itself to all who need a restorative. S. J. HODGKINSON'S Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Druggists and grocers everywhere—the first cause the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial fever, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by his standard family medicine.

Merit Wins.
 We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklin's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merit. S. J. HODGKINSON Druggist.

Oregon is one of the most productive States in the Union. It has vast mineral regions containing gold, silver, copper, iron and coal. Its immense tracts of grazing lands support thousands of cattle and sheep, and its extensive agricultural regions produce all the cereals in abundance, the yield per acre being, in some instances, the largest in the world. Among the useful and valuable products of the Webfoot State may be mentioned Oregon Kidney Tea, which has proved a boon to thousands afflicted with pain in the back and kidney difficulties. It is purely of vegetable composition and never fails. Sold by William Fininger.

The immediate symptoms of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are a distressing sense of weight, oppression and fullness in the stomach, heartburn, loss of appetite, foul breath, belching, flatulency, nausea, pains in the shoulders and breast. Dr. Henty's Dandelion Tonic promotes healthy digestion and removes all unhealthy symptoms. Sold by William Fininger.

This is the season of the year when the raw, cold winds create and have with the hands and complexion. Soft, white hands and a clear "peachy" complexion can be assuredly preserved by the frequent application of Dr. Henty's Specific. If rubbed into the skin well it leaves no greasy surface. The skin absorbs it. Sold by William Fininger.

ABOUT GRIZZLIES.

Six Bears That Manifested Neighborly Propensities.

A "Man of Letters" Tells About Seattle and His Theories of the Friendly Season's Their Thrilling Experiences.

What Seattle doesn't know about bears isn't worth knowing; and when he puts his foot down all the Milk river boys say amen, and that settles it. Seattle is almost the only genuine old-time settler in the mountains in fact. None of the boys nowadays believe, for instance, that bears and Indians were ever in league together against the whites, but Seattle says he knows it to be a fact that in the early days, before the California trail was opened up, there was an understanding between the Blackfoot Indians and the grizzlies. When the Indians were on the war-path the grizzlies would chase a white man on sight, and when the Indians buried the hatchet the grizzlies would almost walk up and shake your hand.

Seattle has noticed, too, that bears are a heap friendlier some years than others, and believe it's owing to changes in the moon and sun. He allows that, in what he calls a "friendly season," a man that would shoot at a bear, except for meat, would steal horses or even his own mother. Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, and all the old hands, Seattle says, used to tell the tales of the grizzlies on the mountains when they first came into the mountains the grizzlies would have sided with the whites against the Indians, and the Indians would have caved in in no time instead of fighting it out up hill and down dale.

Howsoever all this may be, I want to tell you, for a starter, of a little affair that happened to Seattle and me last June in the Bear's Paw Mountains, between Camp Cook and Assinaboine. We undertook to prospect a gulch in the Bear's Paw for a lost silver mine that Seattle got tipped on down in Roseman a year ago last summer, out in a mighty short time after striking the gulch we were glad to skip, mine or no mine, as the case might be, and all on account of the friendliness of the grizzlies. A bigger party might perhaps go up in there and hold their own long enough to find the mine, but Seattle and me not all we wanted of it in next to no time at all.

We fitted out at Camp Cook and packed our grub and tools up toward the head of the gulch, with a pair of burros, and then turned our riding ponies and the burros loose in a little park down below. We found an old shack in the gulch, which Seattle allowed had been built by the owners of the lost mine, and which we at once took possession of, with the idea of making it our camp for the season.

The provisions had been stowed away in the back part of the shack, which was divided into two compartments, and was reached by the fire outside, in the dark, cooking supper, when I saw the dim figure of what I naturally supposed to be one of the burros approach and stand within thirty yards of the fire. Seattle thought it was a burro, too, for beyond the glimmer of the fire it was pretty dark, and we being in the light, were at a disadvantage, anyhow. The grizzling bacon and the coffee filled the whole gulch round about with odors that whetted our appetites, and as both were hungrier than wolves in winter, anyhow, we paid no attention to the intruder beyond making some casual remark. There was nothing unusual, anyhow, about a burro when in a new camp coming and loafing around the fire.

A few minutes passed and supper was nearly ready, when the other burro showed up at about the same distance on the upper side of the camp. As the gulch was middling narrow hereabout and neither of us had seen any of the animals pass up, we thought this a little strange, but still paid no particular attention.

"Dread the burros!" said Seattle. "What do they want up here, anyway? Why don't they stay down in the park with the horses?" But we paid no heed till, in a minute, Seattle sung out: "Why, here's one of the horses, too, devil take 'em!" and the figure of a third animal came into relief against the shack, which was about twenty paces behind us. As I poked up the fire, and the flames from the pitch-pine sticks flickered and lit up the logs of the shack, Seattle shaded his eyes and peered over at the latest arrival.

"Why," said he, "for there wasn't much light after all—that one's a burro; one of the others must be a horse then—yes, and there comes the fourth one, up the gulch; they're all here."

Both of us then looked round with some nervousness for the first time. All the while Seattle repeated, "By thunder! how's that? Why, there's five of them; six of them; that one ain't a burro, that's a grizzly! That one's a bear, too. Why, I'll be d-d-blasted for a Down Easter if they ain't all bears, every mother's son of 'em," says he, "all bears!"

To say I felt mighty uncomfortable is putting it mild. I had been in a scrimmage or two with grizzlies, and to suddenly realize that six of the varmints were within forty yards of us was a powerful test of a man's nerves—of mine, anyway. Seattle, however, took in the situation as cool as a cucumber.

"What's to be done?" said I, "be lively, Seattle, for our Winchester were in the shack, and the only shooting iron we had between us was my revolver. I had this wrapped out in pretty short order; but Seattle motioned me to put the thing up."

"What's to be done?" he echoed. "Why, nothing, only keep cool and keep the fire a-going. This is a friendly year with 'em," says he, "or you'd never see a whole herd of 'em come a-rattling up and looking on at the cooking. Pour out the coffee and let's get to eating. I'm hungry, for one. They'll clear out when they get good and ready, if we don't make 'em understand that we undertake to whip 'em we might find it a big contract before we get through."

The tin cups and the sugar and plates, however, were in the shack, and without them there could be no supper.

"That's all right," said Seattle. "If it's a friendly year with 'em they haven't come here with chips on their heads, nor shoulders a-rolling. Come on."

So, picking up a blazing pine knot apiece, we both started for the shack. The bear we had seen outside had gone in, but I came out with a rush as we brandished the torches and advanced, and scurried off round the shack. Fire is about the only thing a grizzly is really scared of, so Seattle says, and to simply send 'em off a pine knot in the best weapon a man could have.

been alone, I should certainly have taken to my Winchester and tried to drive 'em off. But it was very evident by this time that Seattle knew what he was talking about, and the bears in this gulch were visiting us in a spirit of prying curiosity, if not positive friendliness, and were also, most likely, attracted by the aroma of grizzling bacon.

We were in the back room looking over the mischief the last bear had wrought among our provisions, when the same animal, as far as we could judge, thrust his head inquiringly into the front door. Seattle swore a good-natured oath about this remarkable exhibition of cheek, and hurried a tin dough-pan at him. The noise of the pan scared him away, but he stopped and turned round before he had gone many steps, and seemed half inclined to come back. The taste of ham broiled around his chops, and but for his dread of the torches I believe he'd have come back and disputed its possession with us anyhow, for if there is one thing a bear likes better than any thing else it's a nice sugar-cured ham. A bear will stow away more ham than a Sioux, which is saying a good deal more for the bear than you might suppose.

As we sat there and stowed away flap-jacks and bacon and coffee, one of the biggest of the grizzlies sat on his haunches just beyond the circle of the glow, surveying us with a wistful leer and licking his chops as though begrudging us every mouthful. We too, I have said, had a body, man, Injun or bear, to sit and stare and look hungry and wistful while I eat; but Seattle allowed we'd have to put up with it, as it would never do to shoot or abuse them hard enough to make 'em fight back. The bear acted more like a big dog, who was afraid to come near for fear of a kick, but was in no unfriendly mood. Now and then, as we tossed a pancake over, and the aroma of bacon fat floated down his way, he seemed mightily tempted to come up to the fire and make himself at home. Seattle, however, was prompt to check any undue familiarity by tossing pine knots at him. The best way, Seattle said, with both bears and Injuns, is to draw the line at familiarity. Both of 'em will steal from a white man, even when on the friendliest terms, and unless you keep 'em in their place they'll run over you sure.

When Seattle threw pine knots at him the grizzly simply shuffled over to one side a little and sat down as before. He looked so friendly and good natured as the blaze leaped up and revealed his face that Seattle finally tossed him a hot pancake sprinkled with sugar. The grizzly picked it up with his paw, and waving it in the air until it became cool, bolted it with a relish so keen and comical that we both roared with laughter. The bear sidled up a foot or two closer as we burst out laughing, and Seattle swore by all the grizzlies he'd ever seen that this one grined a broad, good-natured smile in response to our own merriment. He allowed, however, that it would never do to let the bear presume too far on our good nature, or the first thing we knew it would be hobnobbing with us over our supper and helping itself to cakes and bacon.

We both were so absorbed over our supper, and the friendly attentions of Old Eph, as Seattle called him, that we forgot about the rest of the herd. They didn't suffer us to ignore them long, however; for the door of the shack, which we had taken care to close and fasten, gave way with a crash, and we looked round to see the big, lumbering grizzly that had burst in to topple into the shack with it. The noise of the forcible entry rather startled the bold burglar, however, and he backed out of the shack with a laughing, howling over his shoulder at us to see whether he had been discovered. Seattle jumped up and hurled a pine knot at him. He hesitated a moment, as if to make sure whether we were really in earnest about objecting to his going in-side, then, as Seattle grabbed up another firebrand, he scurried off around the shack.

During this proceeding Old Eph still held his ground about the edge of the glimmer and looked at us, so we fancied, in mild reproach for not being more hospitable. Supper ended, we tossed him the bacon rinds and another pancake, and then lit our pipes and talked the situation over.

Evidently there was no getting rid of our unwelcome guests that night at any rate, so we moved the fire over to the door of the shack, and took turns in sitting up to keep the going. All night long the weird shapes of the grizzlies loomed up here and there, just beyond the circle of the camp fire's glow, and several times a woolly head peeped round the corner of the shack. It was the queerest night I ever spent as regards bears; as old Seattle's theory about "friendly seasons" was no longer subject to the shadow of a doubt in my mind, I spent a good part of my watch musing over the probable explanation.

Well, the morning came and at the first streak of dawn the bears disappeared for the time being. As my own musing failed to enlighten me, I appealed again to Seattle. "I told you it's the moon and the sun," said he. "Ask any old-timer if you don't believe me."

The old-timers, however, are about all gone where they can hot answer the questions of mortals; and since Seattle was right about the "friendly seasons," I reckon he must be right, too, about the moon and sun.—N. Y. Sun.
